Read!

Reminder...

Students should read every day!

Sixth Grade continued reading and discussing our class novel, Wonder by R.J. Palacio. We read and analyzed poetry, practiced writing limericks, completed daily literacy skills activities, and read our Independent Reading (IR) books. We also continued closely reading and analyzing nonfiction paired-text articles from Scholastic Scope. We practiced writing text-dependent paragraphs, and we responded to March writing prompts. We read nonfiction texts on Newsela and completed paragraph responses, and we completed weekly i-Ready lessons. We also practiced cursive writing. We completed Wordly Wise Lesson 8 activities and tests, and we began Lesson 9 activities. We continued Poetry March Madness poem studies. Our "Dog Breeds" research projects will be finalized next week and then presented. Assignments are posted in Google Classroom.

Seventh Grade continued reading and discussing our class novel, The Giver by Lois Lowry. We read and analyzed poetry, practiced writing limericks, completed daily literacy skills activities, and read our Independent Reading (IR) books. We also continued closely reading and thinking critically about nonfiction paired texts from Scholastic Scope. ELA Grades 6-8...

Middle School English Language Arts Curriculum is aligned to the New Jersey Student Learning Standards for English Language Arts. We use the workshop model of instruction in both reading and writing. Students read and write across a wide variety of genres as well as study the effective uses of writing, mechanics, and grammar. The curriculum supports, encourages, and facilitates choice/independent reading that allows students to pursue topics and genres of interests. The curriculum also embeds text activities and literacy experiences that engage students in reading partnerships and deep, thoughtful discussions.

Sixth Grade texts include read alouds, poetry, nonfiction articles from Newsela and Scholastic Scope magazine, fiction texts, short stories, and the novels Hoot, by Carl Hiaasen and Wonder, by RJ Palacio.

Seventh Grade texts include read alouds, poetry, nonfiction articles from Newsela and Scholastic Scope magazine, fiction texts, short stories, and the novels The Giver, by Lois Lowry, Holes by Louis Sachar, and (possibly) Drums, Girls, and Dangerous Pie, by Jordan Sonnenblick.

Eighth Grade texts include read alouds, poetry, nonfiction articles from Newsela and Scholastic Scope magazine, fiction texts, short stories, and the novels The Outsiders, by S.E. Hinton, The Gospel According to Larry by Janet Tashjian, and Sleeping Freshmen Never Lie by David Lubar, and (possibly) Drums, Girls, and Dangerous Pie, by Jordan Sonnenblick.
